

Poem #4

"Invictus" by William Ernest Henley

Out of the night that covers me, Black as the Pit from pole to pole, I thank whatever gods may be For my unconquerable soul.

In the fell clutch of circumstance I have not winced nor cried aloud, Under the bludgeonings of chance My head is bloody, but unbowed.

Beyond this place of wrath and tears Looms but the horror of the shade, And yet the menace of the years Finds, and shall find me, unafraid.

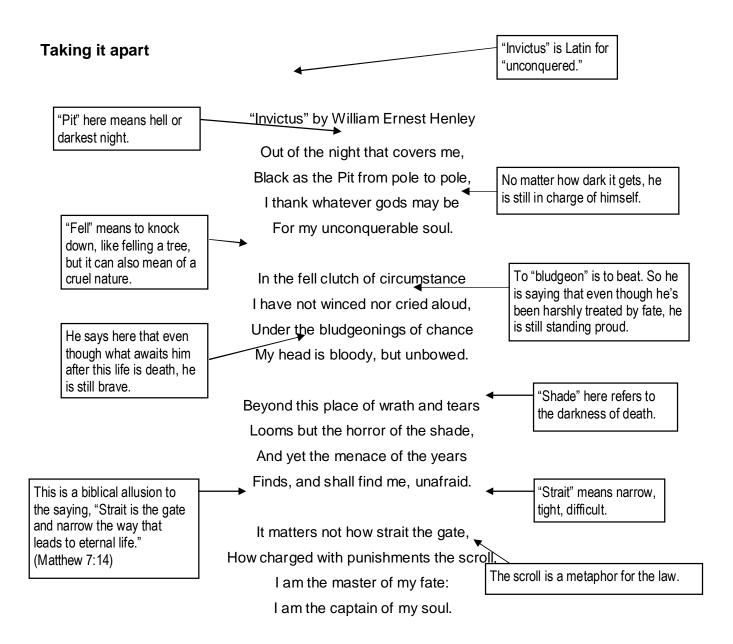

It matters not how strait the gate,
How charged with punishments the scroll,
I am the master of my fate:
I am the captain of my soul.

When he was twelve years old, William Henley developed tuberculosis that affected the bone, necessitating the amputation of his foot when he was older. Though many consider the poem inspiring, it gained some negative attention when Oklahoma City bomber Timothy McVeigh recited it as his deathbed statement before his execution. The message of the poem, that we are in charge of ourselves and not victims of circumstance, rings true today.

When he says "captain of my soul," he makes an image of his life as a ship, and he's the one sailing it.
